Created as a private residence by artist and philanthropist Robert Allerton in the early 1900s, Allerton Park and Retreat Center is a historical treasure that was donated to the University of Illinois in 1946. The property contains 1,500 acres of woodland and prairie areas, a mansion and reflecting pond, a 10-acre meadow, formal sculpture gardens, hiking trails, a café, and several lodging facilities.

The greenhouses, designed by Lord and Burnham, were installed in 1902. The potting shed, situated in the middle of two of the greenhouses, held the head gardener's office, steam heating equipment, and storage areas, and was referred to as the Garden Head House by staff.

In 1982, the potting shed and west greenhouse were remodeled by the University into a visitors' center with restrooms and offices.

In 2018, the potting shed was again remodeled for use as the Greenhouse Café.
